3.0 Introduction

This Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy sets out our commitment to conducting business ethically, with integrity, and in full compliance with all applicable laws and regulations. Bribery and corruption undermine trust, distort fair competition, and expose individuals and organisations to significant legal and reputational risks. We therefore adopt a zero-tolerance approach to any form of bribery or corrupt activity.

This policy applies to all employees, officers, contractors, consultants, and any third parties acting on behalf of the organisation. It establishes clear expectations and standards of behaviour, ensuring that all business dealings are carried out transparently and honestly.

We are committed to preventing, detecting, and addressing bribery and corruption risks in all areas of our operations. Everyone associated with the organisation has a responsibility to uphold these principles and to report any concerns or suspected breaches without delay.

By adhering to this policy, we aim to maintain the highest standards of professional conduct and to protect the organisation, its people, and its stakeholders from the harmful effects of unethical practices.

4.0 AMS Policy Statement

It is our policy to conduct all our business honestly and ethically. We take a zero-tolerance approach to bribery and corruption and are committed to acting professionally, fairly and with integrity in all our business dealings and relationships wherever we operate. We will uphold all laws relevant to countering bribery and corruption in all the countries in which we operate. We are also bound by the laws of the UK, including the Bribery Act 2010, in respect of our conduct both at home and abroad.

4.1 The Purpose of this Policy is to:

- set out our responsibilities, and of those working for us, in observing and upholding our position on bribery and corruption.
- provide information and guidance to those working for us on how to recognise and deal with bribery and corruption issues.

For individual employees' bribery and corruption are punishable by up to ten years in prison and if we as a Company are found to have taken part in corruption, we could face an unlimited fine. We could also be excluded from tendering for public contracts and face damage to our reputation. We, therefore, take our legal responsibilities very seriously.

In this policy, the third party means any individual or organisation you meet during your work for us and includes actual and potential clients, customers, suppliers, distributors, business contacts, agents, advisers, and government and public bodies, including their advisors, representatives and officials, politicians, and political parties.

4.2 Who is Covered by the Policy?

This policy applies to all individuals working at all levels and grades, including senior managers, officers, directors, employees (whether permanent, fixed term or temporary), consultants, contractors, apprentices, casual workers and agency staff or any other person associated with us, or any of our subsidiaries or their employees, wherever located (collectively referred to as workers in this policy).

5.0 What is Bribery?

A bribe is an inducement or reward offered, promised, or provided to gain any commercial, contractual, regulatory, or personal advantage.

Examples:

Offering a bribe

You offer potential client's tickets to a major sporting event, but only if they agree to do business with us. This would be an offence as you are making the offer to gain a commercial and contractual advantage. We may also be found to have committed an offence because the offer has been made to obtain business for us. It may also be an offence for the potential client to accept your offer.

Receiving a bribe

A supplier gives your nephew a job but makes it clear that in return they expect you to use your influence in our organisation to ensure we continue to do business with them. It is an offence for a supplier to make such an offer. It would be an offence for you to accept the offer as you would be doing so to gain a personal advantage.

Bribing a foreign official

You arrange for the business to pay an additional payment to a foreign official to speed up an administrative process, such as clearing our goods through customs. The offence of bribing a foreign public official has been committed as soon as the offer is made. This is because it is made to gain a business advantage for us. We may also be found to have committed a criminal offence.

6.0 Gifts & Hospitality

This policy does not prohibit normal and appropriate hospitality (given and received) to or from third parties provided the following conditions are met:

- it is not done to influence the third party to obtain or retain business or a business advantage, or to reward the provision or retention of business or a business advantage, or in explicit or implicit exchange for favours or benefits.
- it complies with local law.
- it is given in the name of the Company, not in your name.
- it does not include cash or a cash equivalent (such as gift certificates or vouchers).
- it is appropriate in the circumstances. For example, in the UK it is customary for small gifts to be given at Christmas time.
- considering the reason for the gift, it is of an appropriate type and value and given at an appropriate time.
- it is given openly, not secretly.
- gifts should not be offered to, or accepted from, government officials or representatives, or politicians or political parties, without the prior approval of a manager.

We appreciate that the practice of giving business gifts varies between countries and regions and what may be normal and acceptable in one region may not be in another. The test to be applied is whether in all the circumstances the gift or hospitality is reasonable and justifiable. The intention behind the gift should always be considered.

6.1 What is Not Acceptable?

It is not acceptable for you (or someone on your behalf) to:

- give, promise to give, or offer, a payment, gift or hospitality with the expectation or hope that a business advantage will be received, or to reward a business advantage already given.
- give, promise to give, or offer, a payment, gift or hospitality to a government official, agent, or representative to "facilitate" or expedite a routine procedure.
- accept payment from a third party that you know, or suspect is offered with the expectation that it will obtain a business advantage for them.
- accept a gift or hospitality from a third party if you know or suspect that it is offered or provided with an expectation that a business advantage will be provided by us in return.
- threaten or retaliate against another worker who has refused to commit a bribery offence or who has raised concerns under this policy.
- engage in any activity that might lead to a breach of this policy.

6.2 Facilitation Payments & Kickbacks

We do not make, and will not accept, facilitation payments or "kickbacks" of any kind. Facilitation payments are typically small, unofficial payments made to secure or expedite a routine government action by a government official. They are not commonly paid in the UK but are common in some other jurisdictions.

If you are asked to make a payment on our behalf, you should always be mindful of what the payment is for and whether the amount requested is proportionate to the goods or services provided. You should always ask for a receipt which details the reason for the payment. If you have any suspicions, concerns, or queries regarding a payment, you should raise these.

Kickbacks are typically payments made in return for a business favour or advantage. All workers must avoid any activity that might lead to, or suggest, that a facilitation payment or kickback will be made or accepted by us.

7.0 Donations

We do not make contributions to political parties, and we only make charitable donations that are legal and ethical under local laws and practices. No donation must be offered or made without the prior approval of senior management.

8.0 Your Responsibilities

You must ensure that you read, understand, and comply with this policy.

The prevention, detection and reporting of bribery and other forms of corruption are the responsibility of all those working for us or under our control. All workers are required to avoid any activity that might lead to, or suggest, a breach of this policy.

You must notify your manager as soon as possible if you believe or suspect that a conflict with this policy has occurred or may occur in the future. For example, if a client or potential client offers you something to gain a business advantage with us or indicates to you that a gift or payment is required to secure their business. Further warning signs that may indicate bribery or corruption are set out here although these are merely examples, and this list is not definitive.

9.0 Warning Signs

The following is a list of warning signs that may arise during your working for us, and which may raise concerns under various anti-bribery and anti-corruption laws. The list is not intended to be exhaustive and is for illustration purposes only.

If you encounter any of these warning signs while working for us, you must report them as soon as possible.

- you become aware that a third party engages in, or has been accused of engaging in, improper business practices.
- you learn that a third party has a reputation for paying bribes, or requiring that bribes be paid to them, or has a reputation for having a "special relationship" with foreign government officials.
- a third party insists on receiving a commission or fee payment before committing to sign up to a contract with us or conducting a government function or process for us.

- a third-party requests payment in cash and/or refuses to sign a formal commission or fee agreement, or to provide an invoice or receipt for a payment made.
- a third-party request that payment is made to a country or geographic location different from where the third party resides or conducts business.
- a third party requests an unexpected additional fee or commission to "facilitate" a service.
- a third party demands lavish entertainment or gifts before commencing or continuing contractual negotiations or provision of services.
- a third-party request that a payment is made to "overlook" potential legal violations.
- a third-party request that you provide employment or some other advantage to a friend or relative.
- you receive an invoice from a third party that is non-standard or customised.
- a third party insists on the use of side letters or refuses to put terms agreed in writing.
- you notice that we have been invoiced for a commission or fee payment that appears large given the service stated to have been provided
- a third party requests or requires the use of an agent, intermediary, consultant, distributor, or supplier that is not typically used by or known to us.
- you are offered an unusually generous gift or offered lavish hospitality by a third party.

Any employee who breaches this policy will face disciplinary action, which could result in dismissal for gross misconduct. We reserve our right to terminate our contractual relationship with other workers if they breach this policy.

10.0 Record Keeping

You must declare and keep a written record of all hospitality or gifts accepted or offered, which will be subject to managerial review.

You must ensure all expenses claims relating to hospitality, gifts or expenses incurred to third parties are submitted by our expenses policy and specifically record the reason for the expenditure.

All accounts, invoices, memoranda and other documents and records relating to dealings with third parties, such as clients, suppliers, and business contacts, should be prepared and maintained with strict accuracy and completeness. No accounts must be kept "off the books" to facilitate or conceal improper payments.

11.0 How to Raise a Concern

You are encouraged to raise concerns about any issue or suspicion of malpractice at the earliest possible stage. If you are unsure whether a particular act constitutes bribery or corruption, or if you have any other queries, these should be raised with your manager.

12.0 What to do if you are a Victim of Bribery or Corruption

It is important that you tell us as soon as possible if you are offered a bribe by a third party, are asked to make one, suspect that this may happen in the future, or believe that you are a victim of another form of unlawful activity.

13.0 Protection

Workers who refuse to accept or offer a bribe, or those who raise concerns or report another's wrongdoing, are sometimes worried about repercussions. We aim to encourage openness and will support anyone who raises genuine concerns in good faith under this policy, even if they turn out to be mistaken.

We are committed to ensuring no one suffers any detrimental treatment because of refusing to take part in bribery or corruption, or because of reporting in good faith their suspicion that actual or potential bribery or other corruption offence has taken place or may take place in the future. Detrimental treatment includes dismissal, disciplinary action, threats, or other unfavourable treatment connected with raising a concern.

14.0 Communication

Our zero-tolerance approach to bribery and corruption must be communicated to all suppliers, contractors, and business partners at the outset of our business relationship with them and as appropriate thereafter.

NOTE: This Anti-Bribery policy does not form part of any employee's contract of employment, and it may be amended at any time.
